

Bank of America Spring Diversity & Inclusion Forums

Whether you are in the early stages of exploring opportunities or you have decided on a potential career path, the Bank of America Spring Diversity & Inclusion Forums provide female and ethnically diverse first year and sophomore students with the opportunity to learn about the financial services industry, dive deep into specific business areas, develop relationships with professionals and prepare for the 2020 application and interview process. Bank of America is committed to diversity and inclusion in its workforce – all students are welcome to apply.

Elevating Careers Diversity & Inclusion Forum

NYC: March 26 & 27
Charlotte: April 4 & 5

This one-and-a-half day insight forum offers students the opportunity to gain a better understanding of career paths in financial services. Throughout the program, students will meet with professionals from across Bank of America, learn about the financial services industry, develop professional skills and understand how to prepare for the application and interview process.

Ignite with Tech Diversity & Inclusion Forum

Charlotte: April 1-3

This two-and-a-half day forum offers students a unique insight into how they can use their computer science or computer engineering degree to make a global impact and real technology innovations that can impact customers, clients and communities.

Step Ahead Banking, Markets & Investment Management Diversity & Inclusion Forum

NYC: April 10 & 11

This two-day forum provides sophomores with specific interest in Banking, Markets or Investment Management with the opportunity to participate in business-specific skill-building sessions and case studies. As part of the application, students will be prompted to confirm their area(s) of interest. During the forum, students will participate in deep-dive learning sessions on the inner workings of that business.

Ignite with STEM Diversity & Inclusion Forum

Charlotte: March 20
NYC: April 2

This one-day forum provides students pursuing a degree in a STEM field with insight into how their degree can make a global impact in financial services. Students will have the opportunity to meet with professionals with similar backgrounds and be exposed to a broad range of businesses focused on quantitative strategies, digital platforms and data analytics, enabling Bank of America to be at the forefront of driving change.

The application deadline for all programs is February 3 at 11:55 p.m. Eastern. While student applications are limited to one Spring Diversity & Inclusion Forum, we will consider applicants for all forums based on capacity.

There are two steps in the application process:

- Online application with resume submission at go.bofa.com/SpringDiversityInclusionForums19
- Video interview

Both steps must be complete to be considered. Travel and hotel accommodation will be provided for students selected to attend.
